Objectives:

1. To equip faculty members and students with a deeper understanding of the principles of influential communication as elucidated in ancient Indian texts.
2. To empower attendees with practical techniques derived from ancient Indian wisdom to enhance their communication prowess.
3. To encourage interdisciplinary dialogue and collaboration between faculty members and students from diverse academic backgrounds.
4. To cultivate a sense of ethical responsibility and integrity in communication practices among both faculty members and students.

Execution:

The seminar titled "Communicating with Influence: Insights from Ancient Indian Wisdom (In collaboration with Centre of Communication, TIAS)" held at Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies was a resounding success, captivating both faculties and students alike. Faculty members and students from various departments gathered in enthusiastic anticipation, eager to explore the depths of ancient Indian wisdom and its relevance to modern-day communication practices. The event, organized by the Department of Journalism and Mass Communication in collaboration with the Centre of Communications, proved to be an enlightening journey into the timeless principles of effective communication.

Distinguished speakers, well-versed in both ancient Indian texts and contemporary communication theories, took the stage to share their insights. They delved into the rich tapestry of ancient Indian philosophy, highlighting its profound teachings on the art of storytelling, persuasion, and non-verbal communication. Through engaging presentations and interactive discussions, attendees gained valuable perspectives on how to harness the power of words and gestures to influence and inspire others. From the epic narratives of the Mahabharata and Ramayana to the subtle nuances of body language depicted in ancient treatises, every aspect of communication was explored with depth and reverence.

The seminar provided a platform for fruitful exchanges between faculty members and students, fostering a spirit of inquiry and intellectual curiosity. Participants left the event with a renewed appreciation for the wisdom of the ages and a deeper understanding of how it can inform and enhance their communication skills in both personal and professional contexts. As the echoes of wisdom reverberated through the halls of Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies, they left an indelible mark on all who attended, inspiring them to strive for excellence in their communication endeavors.
