character development, storyboarding, and visual gags. The workshop was aimed at both beginners and those with some experience in cartooning, offering insights into the artistic and technical aspects of the field.

Highlights:

- Instructor: The workshop was led by renowned cartoonist Alex Johnson, known for his work in comic strips and animation. His expertise provided participants with a deep understanding of the cartooning process and practical tips for improving their skills.
- Activities: The event included hands-on sessions where participants created their own cartoons, engaged in group discussions about different cartoon styles, and received personalized feedback on their work.
- Participant Engagement: The workshop fostered an interactive environment where participants shared their creations and received constructive feedback from both the instructor and their peers.

Learning Outcome

- Technical Skills: Participants gained practical knowledge in various cartooning techniques, including character design, facial expressions, and panel layout.
- Creative Development: The workshop encouraged participants to think creatively and develop their unique cartooning style, enhancing their ability to convey stories and humor visually.
- Confidence Building: By working on individual and group projects, participants built confidence in their cartooning abilities and learned how to refine their work based on feedback.
