Small Gifts, Big Dreams – Empowering Children One Notebook at a Time

Smiles That Speak the Language of Hope

Report: Description in (min 250 to max 800 words)

The National Service Scheme (NSS) Unit of Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies organized a community outreach activity on 27th September 2025 at Om Sai Help Foundation, Sector-24, Rohini, New Delhi. The visit was conducted as a part of the institute's ongoing commitment to social responsibility, holistic education, and community welfare. The event began at 4:00 PM onwards and witnessed enthusiastic participation from NSS volunteers, faculty coordinators, and student representatives.

The objective of this initiative was to spread the light of learning and compassion by distributing notebooks, stationery kits, and educational materials to underprivileged children. Along with the distribution, volunteers also conducted interactive fun and learning activities to create an atmosphere of joy, motivation, and inspiration. This outreach event reflected the core values of Seva (Service), Samarpan (Dedication), and Karuna (Compassion), as emphasized in Mulya Pravah and aligned with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals (UNSDGs).

Om Sai Help Foundation is a non-governmental organization working tirelessly for the welfare of underprivileged children and marginalized families in Delhi. The NGO provides educational support, health awareness, and life-skill training to children from economically weaker sections. The collaboration with Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies aimed to support this noble mission through direct student engagement and contribution of educational essentials.

The event commenced at 4:00 PM with a warm welcome by the NGO representatives, who briefed the volunteers about their ongoing programs and the children's background. The NSS faculty coordinator introduced the Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies team and highlighted the purpose of the visit.

Soon after the introduction, the distribution drive began. The volunteers arranged neatly packed stationery kits containing notebooks, pencils, erasers, sharpeners, crayons, and pens for each child. The children, full of excitement, greeted the volunteers with smiles that reflected pure joy and gratitude. The act of giving not only met their immediate academic needs but also encouraged them to continue their learning journey with renewed motivation.

Following the distribution, a series of interactive and recreational activities were organized to engage the children. Volunteers conducted drawing and coloring sessions, quiz games, and storytelling activities to make the event lively and educational. The hall was filled with laughter and energy as children showcased their creativity and actively participated in all activities. Prizes were awarded to those who performed exceptionally in drawing and quiz competitions, which further boosted their confidence and sense of achievement.

The volunteers also conducted a short motivational talk highlighting the importance of education, discipline, and self-belief. Through inspiring stories and real-life examples, they conveyed how education serves as the most powerful tool for transformation and empowerment. The children attentively listened and expressed their dreams of becoming teachers, doctors, police officers, and social workers — a moment that deeply touched everyone present. To conclude the event, a group photograph session was held where children and volunteers posed together holding their new stationery sets. Their cheerful faces symbolized hope, togetherness, and the true spirit of service. Refreshments were distributed to all participants before the team bid farewell. The NSS volunteers of Tecnia Institute of Advanced Studies expressed immense satisfaction and joy in being part of the initiative. They described the experience as heartwarming and humbling, realizing the value of empathy and human connection. For many students, it was their first exposure to real-life community service outside the campus, which helped them appreciate the importance of small acts of kindness in bringing significant change. One of the volunteers mentioned, “We went to distribute notebooks, but came back with lessons of gratitude and humanity.” Another student added, “Seeing those smiles was the biggest reward for our efforts. It motivates us to contribute more in the future.” This reflective experience aligns with the Outcome-Based Education (OBE) approach of the institute, allowing students to develop practical understanding, leadership, and ethical responsibility through experiential learning. Impact and Outcomes • Educational Impact: Children received notebooks and stationery, enabling them to continue their studies with adequate resources. • Social Awareness: The event enhanced student understanding of inequality and the role of education in uplifting marginalized communities. • Personality Development: Volunteers developed essential skills such as communication, teamwork, planning, and empathy through real-world interaction. • Community Bonding: The initiative fostered meaningful engagement between the institute and the community, promoting values of unity and mutual respect. • SDG Contribution: The activity supported UNSDGs related to poverty reduction, education, and equality, translating global goals into local action.
